Innovative and contemporary architecture, where daylight is the star of the show

The accolades keep coming, and now successful multi-award winning architects, Batterham Matthews, are delighted to add the Best Individual Home Award from the LABC (Local Authority Building Control) to their tally of local and regional awards.

The practice, formed in 1994, has a diverse portfolio spanning all sectors, throughout the South West - from a simple, single storey extension to an entire school campus, they excel in creating beautiful, light-filled airy spaces in which people enjoy living, working, learning and playing.

Batterham Matthews Architects works closely with its clients to achieve unique spaces, tailored to the specific needs of the individual and the requirements of the site.

The environment informs all their work, not just in the general context of the individual location, but in making the landscaping part of the design, "bringing the outside indoors".

Advocates of sustainable materials, natural ventilation and passive solar design principles (where windows, walls and floors store and distribute solar energy in the form of heat in the winter, and provide cool ventilation in the summer), they succeed in creating beautiful, individual buildings, which are both a delight to live in and form part of their natural surroundings.

George Batterham sums up this friendly practice's ethos perfectly: "Ultimately, our vision is to create delightful, sustainable, contemporary architecture – impressive and attractive to behold, whilst being practical and economical to build."
